A Rare Attraction.

Mr. M. M. Brannan, an old Texas newspaper man, but now business manager of the Rose Ivy Company, was in Jefferson yesterday arranging for the appearance of Miss Ivy at Assembly Hall next Tuesday night. Our Texas exchanges devote columns of praise to Miss Ivy's entertainment, the Beaumont Enterprise being particular to say that no feature of her performance is overstated. In addition to the extraordinary character of the feats she performs, Miss Ivy is said to possess a very rare voice, a dramatic soprano of the highest quality. Admission 25 and 35 cents. Reserved seats 50 cents; at The J. T. Crow Drug Company.

"The Prospector," by Ralph Connor, is selling at the rate of 50,000 volumes in a fortnight.—Book News. The Library has it.

Six Strong Points

In favor of the Tyler Commercial College that should stand out as prominent as the torch of the Goddess of Liberty to those desiring a thorough practical course of book-keeping, shorthand, type-writing or telegraphy.

1. It is the largest commercial school in the entire South, having had an enrollment of 959 students during the past year.

2. They have a specialist at the head of each department, which makes their work absolutely unexcelled. No inferior school ever built up and held such large patronage.

3. The cost and time required is only about one-half that of any other school doing good work.

4. You study the Byrne Practical Bookkeeping and Simplified Shorthand under their author and other experts.

5. They occupy their own new building, the largest, best lighted, ventilated and equipped commercial school building in the South.

6. The training of their graduates is so thorough that they get the very best positions to be had in our larger cities.

Write for their illustrated catalogue, giving photographs of some of the largest classes ever assembled in a commercial school.

Address Tyler Commercial College, Tyler, Texas.

Come Let

Us show you all the new weaves, designs, and styles for the spring and summer, which fashion commands its subjects to wear, consisting of all the newest materials to be found in the Marts of Fashion, selected with greatest care, taste and skill, that many years of experience could command, in order to fulfill fashion's edict, which has been done to the queen's taste—even to the lowest price and best values. Now on display.

WM. CLARK.

Remember!

Mr. Maluf, who was prevented from lecturing on the Holy Land at the Methodist church because of bad weather, will visit Jefferson next Thursday, April 6, and give us one of his best lectures. He is the son of a Presbyterian minister and was born and raised in the Holy Land. His lecture has some wit and much solid sense. A treat is anticipated. Admission 25 and 15 cents.

Seeing is Believing!

We believe you money is just as good and will go father here.
We believe you are entitled to honest values and we give it to you.
We believe that if you don't get what you buy won't trade with us again.
We believe our Dry Goods, Clothing, Shoes and Groceries are better than the other fellow's.
We believe that it is better to sell one customer all the time than all customers at once.
We believe that you should test our beliefs.
We believe in doing to others as we would have others do to us.
We believe in treating you right and giving you prompt service.
We believe what you see in our "ads" you will find in our store.
We believe the best grade of success is to sell your best grade of goods for least money.
